Look for us in June at the Gardner Museum — We'll be on Display

This June the Gardner Museum will be hosting displays from several of the area historical societies, including Phillipston. This is a great opportunity for our society to get broad recognition for both the society and our programs.

We can use your help. If you are interested in helping us arrange the display, please call Jane French (978-249-4356) or Kay Deans (978-939-4025).

April: Membership Month

May: Annual Meeting

We're celebrating Membership Month in April. Membership in the Historical Society of Phillipston is a fabulous deal!! The cost to join is minimal at only $5 per year for an individual. For $100 you can even get a lifetime membership. And what benefits do you get for this?

Membership demonstrates your support for the community. Only members can vote at the annual meeting in May for the officers and directors who run the society. Members also participate in the society's monthly educational programs and receive the Society's newsletter which is published three times a year. See insert and pay your dues—due at the annual meeting.

We'll see you at the Annual Meeting on May 10th!

Memory Tree

Nancy MacEwen leads us in song as the tree is lit. Thanks to the Whiting Farm for donating the tree and Gerhard Fandreyer for assisting with the lights.

We retired to the church where Rep. Anne Gobi and Sen. Stephen Brewer read the names and events.

Great entertainment by the Chair City Pipers Chorus!

Training

On January 28, 2006, five Board members attended a training session on "Getting Ready for a Capital Campaign," organized and hosted by the Westminster Historical Society. Attendees came from several of the area historical societies,

Annual Meeting

The Annual Meeting is held every May and is the time we elect our officers, directors and committee members. We are always looking for new people and new ideas.

Do you have a talent we can use? Do you want experience to add to your resume? Are you looking for an opportunity to contribute where contributing really makes a difference? Our society is small (approx. 80 members) but very active, with 30-50% of our members actively participating in programs and events each year. As we found out in talking with other societies in the area, these are unusually good statistics!!!

If you're interested, notify the nominating committee: Nancy MacEwen (978-249-

Thanksgiving Fair and the Prelude.

The commission's historic calendars were on sale, and the society handed out membership and program information. The commission sold many of their calendars at these events, and the society got wide recognition. Many current members stopped to say "Hi;" several people signed up for our mailing list; and four new members joined the Society.

Who's Who? — Historical Commission vs Historic District Commission vs Historical Society

Identity Crisis

It's a matter of Identity Crisis! Town residents are often stymied by the myriad of historical groups and their various roles. Phillipston is no different.

The Historical Society of Phillipston, Inc. is a private, non-profit corporation. It is tax-exempt and has been awarded a 501 c(3) designation by the IRS, which means donations to the society can be deducted from the donor's personal income taxes. The purpose of the society is to cultivate and encourage an interest in the history of Phillipston. The society holds monthly educational programs and can acquire and preserve important artifacts as well as establish a society building and museum.

The Historical Commission is the part of town government responsible for community-wide historic preservation planning. The commission compiles an inventory of historic properties; nominates properties for the historic register; comments on state or federal projects that might impact on the town's historical resources (highway widening, new school location, etc.); and also advises town officials and boards on matters that affect these historic resources (zoning changes, the re-use of the town-owned historic buildings, preservation of historic landscapes, etc.).

If a town has a historic district, the Historic District Commission is the regulatory body for design reviews within the historic district. Phillipston's historic district is called the Phillipston Center Historic Area and includes the houses and buildings surrounding the common and within a little more than one-half a mile from the meeting-house (the current Congregational Church). When the historic area was established in 1995, the town elected to not require regulatory design reviews, so the town does not have a Historic District Commission.

Working Together

The Historical Commission is one of the Society's most important partners. Through the Commission, the Society has access to state and federal funding for the preservation of buildings and artifacts. Private funding authorities also want to see the town's historical commission supportive of any society programs that they would fund.

In Phillipston, almost all members of the historical commission are members of the historical society. Last fall, the society and the commission teamed to promote our activities and programs. We had booths at the Pumpkin Festival, the Red Apple Farm's
